

ACTION IS SOUGHT ON NEW CITY JAIL

Council To Be Asked To Name Joint Board To Push Project.

Council this afternoon will be asked to set up a composite committee of three council members, three members of the Fulton county commission and three leading Atlantans to evolve plans for financing a joint police station for Atlanta and Fulton county. A special session has been called for 3 o'clock.

Councilman J. Frank Beck, of the eighth ward, will offer the measure. He conferred Tuesday with Mayor James L. Key regarding the feasibility of the plan and obtained the mayor's sanction.

Councilman Joseph E. Berman, of the fourth ward, will ask drastic changes in present parking laws in the congested district and will seek a uniform one-hour ordinance with one-fourth of each block reserved for loading and unloading.

The council has been called into special session for the purpose of passing on a recommendation of the garage committee that the contract for construction of the new city garage be awarded to the Griffin Construction Company for $10,575.

While the council is taking steps to finance a new police station, the city planning commission will select from a group of drawings from leading Atlanta architects the most adaptable and most artistic plan for furtherance of the city center in the area near the city hall, capital and courthouse.

At the same time, the master plan on which Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the commission, and others have been working for many months will be considered. There are more than 40 major improvements, including street widenings, new park and recreation grounds, street extensions, and projected improvements. It is estimated that a total of 125 projected improvements will be included in the entire plan.

APOLOGY AND FINE RELEASE ATTORNEY IN CONTEMPT CASE

After spending part of the morning and most of the afternoon in Fulton tower Tuesday under a 20-day sentence for contempt of court, H. H. Turner, an attorney, was allowed the privilege of making an apology. Judge John D. Humphries, in accepting his apology "as far as possible," reduced the sentence to a $25 fine or the alternative of two days in jail. The fine was paid.

In reducing the sentence Judge Humphries scored the attorney, asserting that the offense was the "grossest sort of contempt," and that attorneys who have no respect for the courts and are not interested in making others respect the court have no business practicing at the bar. The original sentence of 20 days came as a result of a remark made by Turner to the effect that he did not care to present any further argument in a case, for to do so and to say what he wished would put him in contempt of court.

Judge Humphries ruled that this remark itself was in contempt. When Turner was arraigned before Judge Humphries Tuesday afternoon and made his apology to the court, he was represented by Attorney H. A. Allen, who spoke further in his behalf.

Mild Weather Continues Today

Mild temperatures will continue to prevail in Atlanta and its environs today, according to Arthur H. Scott, meteorologist, and though partly cloudy weather is expected, there will be no rain.

Tuesday, the mercury started the day with a low reading of 66 degrees and climbed to a maximum of 82, the same as of Monday. Today, the temperature will be almost a carbon copy of Monday and Tuesday with a minimum of 66 or 68 degrees and a maximum of no more than 82, said Mr. Scott.

School To Open.

Arrangements to enlarge the vocational departments of Holmes Institute, negro school, are under way in preparation for the opening of the fall term in September, according to Rev. B. H. Holmes, president. According to the president, the largest registration in the history of the school is expected by the time the institution opens on September 12.

KEY IS STANDING PAT ON STEINER CHANGES

Mayor Writes Dr. Frank K. Boland Asking Co- operation.

Mayor James L. Key's stand-pat attitude in his proposal to convert the basement of Steiner clinic into a negro ward for treatment of negro charity cases, thus utilizing all available space for charity cases, probably will be reflected Thursday night at a meeting of leaders of the Fulton County Medical Society.

The medical society and the Albert Steiner cancer clinic are in the throes of one of the most bitter controversies in recent years, due to the objection of the society to having members on the visiting staff while the clinic treats pay and part-pay patients.

Key's stand was taken Tuesday when he called on doctors of Atlanta to co-operate in the plan he has suggested. He addressed a communication to Dr. Frank K. Boland, in which he expressed his views.

The mayor evolved the plan when the battle between the Steiner ward and the medical association first developed.

FREIGHT REDUCTIONS ON COTTON PREDICTED

Move Described as Plan To Meet Motorized Com- petition.

Sweeping reductions in freight rates on cotton from southwestern states soon will go into effect, according to an opinion advanced Tuesday by Carl R. Cunningham, traffic manager,

American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, who last week attended a meeting of railroad men, manufacturers' representatives and shippers appearing before the interstate commerce commission to present information.

Described as a move to meet competition of trucks and motor carrier lines, the new rate tariffs may go into effect as early as September 1, Mr. Cunningham said, adding that sentiment among those appearing before the commission was over-whelmingly in favor of reductions.

Just to what extent the rates will be reduced Mr. Cunningham was not in position to say. He did explain, however, that in one particular tariff application before the commission large shipments of cotton could be made at rates ranging from 6 to 15 cents per 100 pounds lower than the present rates. That application was with strict connection to bulk shipments, the rates to decrease as the shipments increased in weight.

If the commission orders the new bulk tariff the new rates will go into effect on September 6, which is early enough to effect a major portion of the south's crop.

In order to demonstrate the overwhelming sentiment in favor of reduced rates to meet truck competition, Mr. Cunningham said that more than 300 petitions were presented to the commission from mills and cotton firms. Shippers, he said, have agreed that if railroads will reduce their rates to a level of those demanded by truck lines that they will ship by rail.

OGDEN MILLS CONFERS WITH GOTHAM BANKERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, conferred today with a number of New York bankers today at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, presumably for the purpose of discussing new financing for the government.

The government, on September 15, will have to borrow $712,000,000 solely for refunding purposes, and additional amounts, it was stated, will be required to finance the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

One of the questions which was rumored to have been discussed was whether it would be advisable for the government to exercise its right to call for payment the outstanding $336,000,000 of Liberty first 4-14 bonds.

RECEPTION IS HELD BY VETERINARIANS

Scientific Papers Will Be Read Before Convention
This Morning.

Scientific papers and research developments will occupy attention of members of American Veterinary Medical Association on this morning's program of the convention at the Biltmore hotel. The annual banquet will be held at 8 o'clock tonight, with Dr. F. E. Kitchens, of Greenville, S. C., as toastmaster.

A college supper for alumni Tuesday night was followed by the president's reception and dance. The day was spent in hearing committee reports and the annual address of Dr. R. B. Dykstra, president, of Manhattan, Kan., who made a plea for greater recognition of the practitioners of veterinary medicine. Dr. Dykstra recommended for the growth

Parents Refuse To Act In Boxing Match Death

LAGRANGE, Ga., Aug. 23.—(AP) Parents of Wilson R. Adams, 21, who was fatally injured in a friendly boxing bout at his farm home east of LaGrange, declined today to give authorities the names of persons who engaged in the boxing. They said the injury was entirely accidental.

Young Adams became ill a few hours after the bout, and died in a hospital.

and welfare of the veterinary profession high-class advertising of the indirect variety, closer affiliation with other organized medical societies, especially the American Medical Association, more complete systems of state meat inspection in addition to present federal, state and city inspections, and memberships on boards of health to include at least one veterinarian.

Clinics will be held Thursday at Lakewood park, the veterinarians to demonstrate some of the advances in veterinary medicine and surgery. A barbecue will be given Friday and officers will be elected before the close of the convention on that day.

The delegates were welcomed Tuesday by Mayor James L. Key and Dr. W. K. Lewis, of Columbia, S. C., responded.

Motor Crashes Get 8 Victims; News Tells Need of Insurance

"Accidents fatal to 21 in south; auto crashes take heavy toll with 8." This headline appeared in bold type on the first page of The Constitution of Monday morning, carrying another warning to you of the great menace of the ever-growing accident wave. Every day similar headlines tell the story of disaster. Have you profited by the warnings?

Is your income financially protected against abrupt halt? Is the future comfort and happiness of your family safe-guarded? Are you insured against accidents? If not, take advantage of The Constitution's unparalleled offer of security to you in the form of a $10,000 travel and $1,000 auto and pedestrian accident policy for the small registration fee of only $1 per policy per year.

The policy The Constitution offers you provide for payment of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specific accidents, heavy sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability resulting from the accidents set forth in the policy. All this for only $1. registration fee—just about 2 cents a week.

The policy is issued by the North American Accident Insurance Company, of Chicago, Ill. The reliability of this concern is proved by the fact that already more than $150,000 in cash has been paid on claims to Constitution policy holders.

This insurance is offered to old and new subscribers alike. One who is now taking the daily and Sunday Constitution, or will subscribe for it through a carrier in Atlanta or suburbs, through an out-of-town carrier or dealer, paying for the paper weekly, monthly, or otherwise, is a subscriber and is eligible.

Paid-in-advance mail subscribers can also have this insurance by paying the small registration fee of $1 in addition to the subscription price. Those living in Atlanta and suburbs finding it inconvenient to pay the $1 registration fee in advance can pay 20 cents registration fee with the application and 20 cents for five consecutive weeks thereafter in addition to subscription price.

In sending application for insurance the applicant must state name in full, give age and occupation, and if beneficiary is desired the full Christian name of the beneficiary must be given and relationship to the insured.

MRS. DORA CHALFANT DIES IN DETROIT, MICH.

Member of Prominent Georgia Family Is Victim of Auto Accident.

Mrs. Dora Dunwoody Chalfant, 65, prominent Detroit woman, who formerly lived in Atlanta, died Monday in Detroit as the result of injuries received Saturday in an automobile accident. Mrs. Chalfant was the wife of E. T. Chalfant, executive vice president of the National Standard Parts Association.

Mrs. Chalfant was married in Atlanta. Her grandfather, James Dunwoody, built Mimosa Hall, Roswell, and she was born in Washington, Ga., after the family had fled from Roswell during the War Between the States. Her husband was injured in the accident, which occurred as they were motoring to a summer home in northern Minnesota. In addition to her husband, Mrs. Chalfant is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Jack Strain, of Detroit; two

Extreme Informality Marks Wales' Attire

CANNES, France, Aug. 23.—(UP)—New modes set by the Prince of Wales and Prince George here displayed an informality bordering on "undressed" attire. The royal brothers attend gala dinners wearing open-neck collar shirts. The Prince of Wales plays golf in blue dungarees, a red shirt, straw hat and tennis shoes. Prince George wears a blue shirt in shorts and a sailor's "beanie."

The Prince of Wales will dine with Rotarians tonight as head of the British Rotarians. On Thursday, he will attend a charity fete organized by Maurice Chevalier.

Oratory Winner.

DETROIT, Aug. 23.—(AP)—R. D. Burke, Knoxville, Tenn., is winner of the annual oratorical contest held in connection with the national convention of Y's Men's Clubs, a Y. M. C. A. affiliate. He will receive a silver cup contributed by Robert Ferguson, of Dallas, Texas.

ATLANTA'S DEBT SECOND SMALLEST, WEST SAYS IN TALK

Atlanta's bonded debt of $39.11 per capita is the smallest of any city in the United States between 100,000 and 300,000 with the exception of Peoria, Ill. B. Graham West, city comptroller, told members of the Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon meeting of that body Tuesday at the Capital City Club.

West spoke on the tax dollar, and gave interesting figures regarding its expenditure. He cited that fact that assessments on real and personal property have been reduced in the last year from $425,000,000 to $390,000,000 and that the expenditures of the city have been cut more than $300,000.

Tom Moore, president, presided. West was introduced by Robert B. Troutman, prominent Atlanta attorney.

DRY LAW ISSUE EVADED BY TENNESSEE LEGION

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Tennessee department of the American Legion today sidestepped a definite stand on the prohibition question by passing a resolution giving delegates to the national Legion convention authority to vote their own convictions in the event the eighteenth amendment is up for consideration by that body.

The state convention previously adopted a resolution demanding immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus over the vigorous opposition of Carter J. Lynch, of Chattanooga. Johnson City was chosen for the 1933 state convention.

THE VERDICT OF SCIENCE

This is to certify that in 75 repeated tests made of four leading cigarette brands . . . measuring the heat content of each cigarette by the Calorimeter method . . . it was shown that OLD GOLD is from 112 to 156 B. T. U's COOLER than the other brands. Careful measurement of the heat of the smoke further confirmed the fact that the smoke of OLD GOLD is definitely cooler.

Miss Pardue Weds Harvey G. Talley In Augusta, Ga.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 23.—The first Baptist Philanthropic classroom was the scene Sunday morning of a quiet wedding when Miss Willie Montine Pardue was married to Harvey Gordon Talley, of Macon and Atlanta, in the presence of close friends and relatives. Members of the class, of which the bride was a popular member, decorated the room with vines and plants and had arranged an improvised altar, an arch of palms banded with ferns and crepe myrtle and floor baskets filled with cut flowers.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Cary Vincent, pastor of The Hill Baptist church.

The wedding music was rendered by Robert J. Watson at the piano, and W. H. H. Jones, who sang just before the ceremony, "O Promise Me." The bride's dress was a popular member, decorated the room with vines and plants and had arranged an improvised altar, an arch of palms banded with ferns and crepe myrtle and floor baskets filled with cut flowers.

The bride, who entered with the bridegroom, was lovely in her wedding costume, a Goupy model of navy crepe Elizabeth, the skirt was cut on long flaring lines reaching the floor. The jaunty little coat opened over a blouse of soft ecru lace, the sleeves and coat finished off with square scallops. With this was worn a hat of the shade of the dress with trimming of velvet, and her shoes and gloves were of harmonizing shades. Her flowers were sweetheart roses, showered with lilies of the valley. After the ceremony the bride changed her costume for a smart coat suit of Burgundy crepe with hat and accessories of the same color. Mr. and Mrs. Talley left in their car for a tour of the coast of Florida, after which they will be at home at 768 Ponce de Leon avenue, in Atlanta.

Mrs. Talley is the daughter of Mrs. Sally Randall Pardue and the late William Henry Pardue and is a descendant of two of South Carolina's most distinguished families, the Reinhardt and Randalls. The family moved to Augusta from Johnston, S. C., about 10 years ago. She is a Tusculum graduate and for the past six years has been one of the most popular young businesswomen in Augusta. Her charm and sweetness have endeared her to many who regret deeply that her marriage is taking her away from Augusta.

Mr. Talley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Talley, of Macon, Ga., and is located in Atlanta, where he holds a responsible position with the Texas Oil Company. He is a graduate of Lanier High school and was also a student of Mercer University and a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. He is a fine athlete and a member of the Georgia football team, his great-grandfather being the late John W. Talley, one of the founders of Wesleyan College, and all of his people are prominent in the history of the state.

Old Guard Gives Informal Dance At East Lake

Numbered as one of the outstanding affairs of the month was the dinner-dance given last evening by members of the Old Guard at the East Lake Country Club. The guests included representatives of the guard and their wives. Dinner was served on the terrace overlooking the lake. Colored lights and Japanese lanterns gave a carnival atmosphere to the informal occasion.

Will L. Hancock is his official role as commandant, presided at the dinner. The adjutant, V. H. Shearer, acted as toastmaster. Covers were placed for 300 guests.

The guard was organized in Atlanta on January 8, 1897 and includes on its roster many of the prominent identified in the social and business life of this city. Among the list of past commanders are those whose abilities and influence have endowed the organization with a deeper sentiment for the historic Old Guard.

Miss Gladys Beck and Mr. Earp Wed at Ceremony in Griffin, Ga.

GRIFIN, Ga., Aug. 23.—The marriage of Miss Gladys Beck to Cronje Earp, of Garden City, Long Island, was an important event of Monday afternoon being solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Beck, on South Hill street, at 5 o'clock. The impressive ceremony was performed by Dr. J. E. Sammons, of the Vineville Baptist church, in Macon, a life-long friend of the bride's family. During the ceremony Miss Briedendine played "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" from the same copy of the song played at the wedding of the bride's mother.

The reception room where the marriage ceremony was performed was effectively decorated with blossoms carrying out a color note of pink and green. The improvised altar was formed with a background of ferns and palms and was interspersed with tall pedestal baskets filled with pink roses and pink dahlias showered with lace and white ribbon. The bride's gown was of white tulle and pink ribbon, and the groom wore a tuxedo. The bride's bouquet was of white lilies and pink roses. The wedding cake was of white and pink, and the bride and groom cut the cake together. The bride's going-away gown was of brown crepe with beige blouse flowered in shaded brown. Her hat was of brown felt. The bride and groom left for a wedding journey immediately after the reception and after September 1 will make their home in Garden City, Long Island.

The bride is one of the most accomplished and charming young women in Griffin with a brilliant mentality and charming personality that has endeared her to friends among the young and old who regret that her marriage will take her away from Griffin. Mr. Earp is a man of brilliant attainments and holds a responsible position in Garden City, Long Island.

THE GUMPS—QUICK! HENRIETTA—THINK FAST

Midsummer Madness

By Sterling North

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara (Bobby) Jansons, beautiful Chicago office girl, goes away on her two-week vacation determined to forget Eddie Carlson, formerly of her office, with whom she stopped associating when she discovered his friends were of questionable reputation. At the invitation of her employer, Vincent Hallway, Chicago architect, she goes to a lodge in a wild section of Wisconsin and there meets a handsome young man who calls himself Jack Horner. She gives her name as Bobby Burns. Jack tells her he has heard the lodge is haunted. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT II.

"The lodge is rather queer, from everything I've heard," Jack continued, "there are supposed to be secret passageways through the thick log and limestone walls, more rooms than any one could hope to use, and recently the place has gained the reputation of being haunted."

"You can't scare me, Jack Horner," Bobby said, tossing back her brown curls.

"I thought you ought to know," Jack said, "of course, I don't believe in supernatural things myself."

"But you thought that a mere girl."

"I didn't say you were a mere girl, and I didn't say you would be frightened."

"But you intimated as much..."

"I thought we were going to be friends," Jack said, "let's not quarrel the first day we meet..."

"By the way, how does it happen that you are coming up to stay in the lodge?"

"Did Vincent Hallway..."

"It's a secret," Bobby said, "I wouldn't tell anyone in the world."

"You'll tell me, young lady?"

"Oh, no I won't. By the way, where are you stopping?"

"Yes, where?" Jack asked, "I guess I'll have to rent a cabin."

"You had other plans?"

"I had but that's a secret."

"Is this a game?" Bobby wanted to know.

"It's a grand game if it is," Jack said, "I like games like this."

"So do I—some times," Bobby admitted.

"Here is where we get off," Jack said, as the little train pulled to a jerky stop at Gray's Landing.

Night was already falling as they stepped to a wooden platform almost at the water's edge.

The little station was dark, and far off across Fawn lake a loon called its lonesome, lost cry.

On every side, except across the water, the pine forest surrounded them—impenetrable, mysterious, black.

And for some reason, the caretaker was not on hand with the boat to carry her across the lake to the lodge.

Instinctively, Bobby shivered.

Then across the dim water a deeper shadow slid. The put-put-put of the motor and a gruff hail came to the pair waiting on the dock.

"I'm going with you and that's final," Jack insisted quietly. "There is an old cabin not 100 yards from the lodge where I can sleep."

"You make me furious," Bobby whispered, as the boat scraped along the dock and the rope was tossed over the wooden piles.

"Is it you, Miss?" the gruff voice asked. "I'm Pete, the caretaker. Mr. Hallway wired I was to meet you."

"Will you help me with my baggage?"

Quickly the bags and hat boxes were stowed away in the power boat and before Bobby could utter another objection Jack was facing her in the prow and they were speeding away across the water.

Angry and yet fascinated, Bobby watched this irresponsible new friend of hers whose smile was spreading into a wide boyish grin. He should be slapped, or maybe kissed.

"Never mind, I'll fix him," she promised.

"Everything's ready at the lodge," Miss Pete, the caretaker, said, "I had the wife, Martha, scrub out this morning."

"How about the old cabin by the spring?" Jack asked, "Is it occupied?"

"No, sir, it ain't."

"Would you like to earn $10 by cleaning it up and putting in a cot?"

"Ten dollars is a lot of money, and Mr. Hallway wouldn't mind," the caretaker said.

They purred along through the thick twilight with the stars close and large overhead. A muskrat splashed in the reeds and a night hawk dipped above them.

Far ahead they could see the pitch black forest extending like a tongue into the lake.

"That's the point," Pete said, indicating the distant promontory with the stem of his pipe. "It's pretty lonely out there. Sorry I took the job, sometimes."

"You're a new man?" Jack asked. "I only came here 18 months ago."

"I didn't think I remembered you," Jack said.

"What's wrong with the job?" Bobby asked. "I should think you'd love this wilderness."

"Oh, the woods is all right," Pete said. "I been living in the woods all my life. It ain't that."

"Well, what is it then?"

"There's something wrong around here," Pete said.

"What's wrong?" Bobby insisted.

But the old man at the tiller had fallen silent and the only sound was the put-put of the motor and its distant echoes against the forest wall.

The bass were feeding on lake flies, leaping almost clear of the water as they struck at the insect and its distant echoes against the forest wall.

And once again the loon sent a shiver down Bobby's back.

Born and raised in the city, she could scarcely accustom herself to this vast, silent country that lies northwest of Lake Michigan and south of Lake Superior. She knew that this was only one of a chain of lakes which drain at last into the swift-falling, turbulent Oconto river.

Halloway had told her something of this land, but she wished to know more.

"How deep is this lake?" she asked. "Nobody knows how deep it is," Jack said.

"Some say it's bottomless, but that, of course, is superstition. Just as it must be superstition that the old lodge is haunted."

"Aye, it's haunted all right," said Pete from the darkness. "I've seen 'em."

"What have you seen?" Bobby demanded. "You're just superstitious."

"Say what you like," Pete said. "I've seen 'em."

"Probably fireflies," Bobby cried impatiently. "Do go on telling me about the lake, Jack."

"It's a summer colony at the north end and more than three miles from the lodge," Jack continued, "but Halloway owns all the timber on the south side of the lake, and a mile of the best trout stream in Wisconsin."

"I used to come up here as a boy and hook brown and speckled trout out of the deep holes."

"Didn't Mr. Halloway ever catch you?"

"Catch me? No, never. And besides he didn't seem to mind. In fact, Mr. Halloway seemed to like me."

"I think I can understand that," Bobby said in a low contralto voice that moved the young man mightily.

"And now I'm feeling what I used to feel as a boy," Jack said, "out here all misunderstanding and human pettiness are forgotten. I know you'll think I'm sentimental, but out here a man can find himself."

"I don't think you're sentimental at all," Bobby said.

They were sliding into a small cove hidden behind the curving point and now Pete was leaping to the pier.

A light gleamed above them through the pines, and a middle-aged woman, lantern in hand, emerged out of the gloom.

"This is Martha," Pete said. "Martha, this is Miss Barbara and Mr. Jack."

With a final, despairing effort, Venters reached the shelf in safety. With his precious burden beside him, he watched the last moments of precarious change to an hour of gray gloom, and then the lighting of the dawn. The girl had not moved.

The balance of the climb, and the descent into Surprise Valley, could be made in one trip. The girl did not waver from her heavy slumber as he lifted her. The climb up under the rugged brows of the broken cliffs was a tax on his strength and nerve.

He did not rest until he had gained the divide. Balancing Rock loomed huge, a thing without life, yet it seemed to speak silently to Venters: "I am waiting to plunge down, to shatter and crash, to bury your trail, and close forever the outlet to Deception Pass."

The descent into the valley now lay before them, where they would be shut off alone, beyond the reach of civilization. Venters marvelled at the strange fate that had given him this girl to protect—this mysterious girl whom he had nearly killed.
